Trump's Lawsuit Verdict: Carroll Wins the Jackpot

THE ISSUE: A verdict ordering former President Donald Trump to pay $83 million to E. Jean Carroll.

Donald Trump

"There appears to be a conflict of interest in every case being presented against former President Donald Trump ('Conflict of Interest' Jan. 26).

One of the conflicts of interest may have involved that lobbyist's attempt to amend the statute of limitations for major lawsuits — to potentially enable the case against Trump.

Ultimately the verdict in the E. Jean Carroll defamatory lawsuit — awarding the plaintiff over $83 million — is a travesty of justice.

He showed total disrespect for the judicial system which as a potential sitting president is unacceptable. Shame on him for undermining the credibility of our courts.

In that what he will do as a foreign leader says if a foreign leader doesn't something he doesn't like? Character counts! — much like all of his businessmen — Trump is bankrupt in character.

are a sign of the times it seems to me that the press is not doing the job of reporting the news but rather trying to run with the wind in any direction. This could either damage or protect Trump in his tenure as the presidency.

As in the 1970s, the public has the right of the defendant in a criminal and especially court proceedings.

After being hit with an outrageous $83 million lawsuit judgment, Trump stormed out of the courtroom and subsequently posted on Truth Social, "This is not America!"

You've got to hand it to the 77-year-old former president. He could choose to effortlessly live out his golden years in pure splendor at Mar-a-Lago without a care in the world. Instead — due to his undying love for America — he chooses to endure relentless defamation and harassment designed to damage him politically, financially and personally.

Incredibly, this dog-state full-court press against him is backfiring as Trump continues to surge in the polls.

Like him or not, Trump is clearly on a mission from God to save not only America — but ultimately the entire world.

In fact, the case had no merit and should have never gotten to trial. The issue that the jury was asked to rule on was not the plaintiff's personal allegations — that Trump and E. Jean Carroll at Bergdorf Goodman and raped her in a ladies dressing room — is corroborated.

Trump's lawyers failed in their mission and he should replace them before he files his appeal.

• Trump was treated very badly and unfairly in federal court.

I have been a trial attorney for over 50 years in both state and federal courts in New York. I have honestly never seen any defendant treated like Trump was. To tell you the truth, it was scary to watch.

I can't believe my fellow attorneys are not protesting this verdict. I don't believe Trump should pay a single cent of the verdict. Instead he should appeal for a new trial.

• Trump didn't like the closing argument in the Carroll case. He walked out as counsel was addressing the jury.

• How utterly obscene to award Carroll $83 million for defamation ("MAGA millions," Jan. 27).

She testified with a straight face under oath that her reputation "as a respected journalist" was destroyed and ended the world she lived in. In what universe could anyone believe this woman when she couldn't even remember the year the Bergdorf fitting-room incident took place?

I hope Trump's appeal is taken seriously and this over-the-top award is greatly reduced. Otherwise I have lost faith in our justice system and the rule of law.

• Awarding these exorbitant damages signals that the sky is the limit.

STEVEN Spielberg's Handwritten should have once again been a public service.

Like "Band of Brothers" and "The Pacific" before it, this "Masters of the Air" is a historical act of devotion to the memory of the men who fought in World War II, this time focusing on Europe.

Telling the story of the war will always be a labor more than a pleasure, especially when you don't like their very much, and Hands are better than anyone has called "Masters" with World War II's Eighth Air Force's Bloody 100th. It took in some one duty of it.

No one has story, the man and the war as before, an ever will.
